WHITE WAY FOR CAPITAL OPPOSED BY LIGHTING CHIEF

Electric lights of greater candle-power than those now in use for important street intersections, circles and squares were recommended by Warren B. Hadley, electrical engineer of the District, in his annual report, submitted to the Commissioners yesterday.

Hadley said he did not advocate a "Great White Way" and con sidered the city fortunate in that it has escaped such a lighting system.

"Invidious critics, consciously or unconsciously, miss this," Hadley stated. "Even Pennsylvania avenue, though effectively lighted for the first and second purposes, and though attractively lighted, has a far from high degree of illumination and more lighting for the third purpose would be amply justified by the importance of the thoroughfare. The lighting of the city rather generally is on somewhat too low a plane."

Incandescent lamps of 400 and 600 candle-power are in general use in other cities," said the report, "while Washington has only 74 lamps of 200 and 250 candle-power, the remainder being 100 candle-
